ON TO MALOLOS.

American Army Advancing Upon Aguinaldo's Headquarters.

Wheaton Captures Pasig and Takes 400 Prisoners With Small Loss.

Washington, D. C., Mar. 16.—Maj. Gen. Otis officially reported yesterday the occupation of Pasig and Pateros, on the shore of Laguna Bay, with sufficient force to hold them. Three thousand rebels assembled there Tuesday night and were dislodged after heavy fighting, losing heavily, while 400 were taken prisoners. Wheaton's loss was small. His loss up to that time was reported by Maj. Gen. Otis to be five killed and twenty-eight wounded. Press advices state that Pasig was taken yesterday afternoon, the rebels making a stand with 2,000 men. Maj. Gen. Otis considers this the greatest victory since Feb. 5. The Americans will now press on to Aguinaldo's headquarters at Malolos.

WORSE AND WORSE.

More Testimony of the Most Damaging Character About Army
Beef.

Chicago, March 16.—First Lieut. F. M. Davis, of the First cavalry, told the beef court of inquiry that one-half the canned roast beef issued to the soldiers in Cuba was thrown away because it was unfit to eat and that he himself had opened one can and found maggots in it. The maggots were dead and he said must have been canned with the meat. Surgeon John B. Shaw said that potomac poisoning followed from eating the canned meat. A packing-house expert testified that the cattle used for canning are very inferior; that one-third would be condemned in any English market, and that little or no nutriment is left in the meat that goes into the can. To-day the court will resume at Omaha.

ON THE RAMPAGE.

Todd County People Engage in a Street Fight.

Elkton, Ky., March 14.—At 9 o'clock last night on the public streets of this city, a shooting affair took place between four men from the county. Fayette Jones, Will Gray, Chas. Jones and Z. Jones, and the city police. The countrymen were charged with being disorderly, and the officers in attempting to arrest them, were fired upon by the men, who were all heavily armed. The result of the battle was the killing of Fayette Jones, and the serious wounding of Will Gray. The officers escaped unhurt.

Will Gray, Charles and Z. Jones were arrested by the officers, who were congratulated by the citizens on their bravery.

The affair has been the talk of the town to-day, as it was the most sensational occurrence in recent months.

DOWN IN GEORGIA.

The President Visiting Hanna at His Winter Home.

Thomasville, Ga., March 14.—The Presidential party arrived here this afternoon. The party was met at the station by Mel Hanna, brother of the Senator; J. Wyman Hanna's sister; Mayor Hopkins and a number of prominent citizens.

The party which has arrived consists of the President and Mrs. McKinley, vice-President and Mrs. Hobart and Master Hobart, Senator Hanna and Miss Phelps, Dr. J. N. Rixey and Cortelyou, assistant secretary to the President, and B. S. Barbee, one of the executive clerks.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Commonwealth Matters Occupying the Court's Attention.

One Sent to the Pen—Grand Jury
Finds 57 Indictments and Adjourns.

Commonwealth cases were resumed in Circuit Court this week and several have been disposed of.

Roy Boales, col., was convicted of robbery, and given ten years in the penitentiary. Boales is an old offender, who has been a regular boarder in the county workhouse.

Griffin Ross, col., was fined $100 for aiding a prisoner to escape at Pembroke. Failed to pay and was sent to the workhouse for 100 days.

Jim Hopkins was fined $20 for gaming.

Four indictments against Jesse Coleman charged with selling liquor without license were reinstated on the docket and dismissed.

Jas. Mabry, gaming, fined $25. The grand jury adjourned Tuesday evening after returning 34 indictments, making 57 in all.

Among the number were:

John Dollins, seduction, and same assault and battery; six for gaming and three for grand larceny were returned against various parties.

NOT ALARMED.

Insurance Men Think the Appellate Court Will Decide in Their Favor.

Lexington, Ky., March 15.—A gentleman connected with the management of the Kentucky and Tennessee Insurance Association says this morning that business men need have no alarm on account of several companies leaving the State. He thinks the Court of Appeals will reverse the cases against the companies. He says the companies feel that the opposition to them does not come from the businessmen in the cities and towns, but from the farmers, who do not understand the nature of fire insurance.

APPELLATE DECISION.

Private Corporations Held Not Liable for Franchise Taxes.

Frankfort, Ky., Mar. 15.—Private corporations will derive much relief from an opinion handed down by the Court of Appeals Tuesday, in which the court held, contrary to a former decision, that private corporations are not subject to franchise taxation and need not make to the State Auditor the reports required of other corporations for the purpose of valuing franchises. The decision was in the case of the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company against the Commonwealth, and it completely reverses a previous decision of the court. Judges Guffy, Paynter and White dissent from the opinion of the majority.

$5,000 DAMAGES

Awarded in a Suit Against a Hopkinsville Contractor.

Elizabethtown, Ky., March 15.—This morning the jury in the damage suit of E. A. Morgan against J. M. Adams, a contractor residing in Hopkinsville, awarded damages in favor of Morgan in the sum of $5,000. Morgan was employed by Adams last May as a laborer to work on the L. & N. railway bridge at Nolin, and while at work he was knocked from the bridge by a large piece of timber, which crushed his head.

ANDERSON'S WIDOW.

Letter Received From the Widow of Geo. K. Anderson.

Mr. R. S. Green sent a paper containing information of the finding of the memorandum book of Geo. K. Anderson, Cotton Gin, Texas, with the names of the Confederate soldiers buried in this city, to the address given in the book. Wednesday he received a reply from Mrs. Carrie E. Anderson, widow of the veteran, who she says died in 1882. Mrs. Anderson's brother, R. K. Murray, was one of the unknown soldiers buried under the Latham Monument. The book will be sent to Mrs. Anderson.

Tough on Egan.

Washington, D. C., Mar. 16.—Testimony before the Beef Court of Inquiry Tuesday developed the fact that there was no thorough inspection of the meat furnished the army. One officer's testimony showed that the Commissary Department relied confidently upon the "responsibility of the packers." It was also stated that Commissary General Egan made purchases of low grade canned roast beef, by telegraph from Washington, without any inspection whatever.

DRUMMER NEARLY DROWNED.

A Young Man Whose Home is In Princeton, Ky.

A drummer named Edmunds, representing the Overback-Gilmore Co., of Louisville, and his companion, a driver, made a narrow escape near Concordia, Monday, Jr crossing a bridge over a swollen creek, the horses attached to the vehicle in which they were riding ran off the bridge into the flooded stream. By heroic efforts Edmunds and the driver managed to save their lives. The rig was lost and the horses drowned. Breckenridge News.

The Arkansas Senator Improves, but Ex-Gov. Fletcher Is Dying.

Washington, March 15.—Senator Jones, of Arkansas, had a quiet night, and his physicians say he is progressing steadily.

Ex-Governor Fletcher, of Missouri, is still in a critical condition, with no change from yesterday.

Mrs. M. E. Foster has moved to Clarksville, where she will open a dressmaking establishment.

KENTUCKY CROP REPORT.

Condition of Crops and Live Stock
March 1st, 1899.

Reports were received this month from 153 correspondents representing 98 counties.

It may be well to restate in this, the first report of the year, the boundaries of the section into which the State, for the sake of convenience and accuracy, is divided, and the reasons for the separation. The irregular contour of the counties makes it impracticable to divide upon straight lines in any given course. Again, it is advisable to separate the "dark tobacco" district in the west part of the State from the Burley district of the central and eastern portion. Likewise it is desirable to separate the counties in the eastern and south-eastern portion, where the production of any crop rarely exceeds the home demand and where the percentage of increase or decrease affects in a small measure only the actual production of the State, from the other sections producing a large surplus. To meet all these varied conditions the following divisions appear to us as the best to be devised:

The western section comprises 39 counties west of an irregular line drawn from the eastern boundary of Hardin county on the north to the eastern boundary of Allen on the South, the intervening counties of Laclede, Hart and Barren being placed in the western section. The central, or to be more accurate, the north-central section, embraces 40 counties lying east of the above described boundary and north-east of an irregular boundary drawn from the eastern boundary of Lewis county on the north-east of Laclede county in the south-east, the intervening counties of Bath, Montgomery, Clark, Madison, Lincoln, Boyle and Marion being in the central section. The eastern or south-eastern section is composed of the remaining 40 counties lying south-east of the above-described lines.

Wheat.

The condition of the wheat crop December 1st, the date of the last report, was 94, compared with average years. As set out in that report there was a lengthy interval between the early sown and the late sown wheat due to an unusually wet October, wheat sowing being suspended for the greater portion of the month. The early sown wheat attained a growth that promised to withstand any weather test to which it might be subjected. This promise has been realized, and at this date early wheat is generally reported in excellent condition. Late sown wheat was barely above ground at the advent of winter, and the severe weather it has encountered, both in the early and latter parts of winter, has left it in a condition that may be aptly described as a "blue prospect." Whole fields now appear without a vestige of growth above ground and, while a few correspondents venture the opinion that the roots are uninjured, it will take some weeks of warm growing weather to develop the full extent of damage. As a rule there was an ample covering of snow during the extreme cold weather of February, but, falling as it did on the almost solid sheet of ice, the benign effect of the protection was in a measure lost.

Answers to the question "Has wheat suffered from any cause during the winter?" If, so state cause, resulted in replies from 115 correspondents, of which number 97 state that wheat suffered from "freeze," and 18 say it has not been appreciably damaged during the winter.

Heavy rains, particularly in the western section, is another source of no considerable damage.

The condition for the State as a whole, compared with average years, is 80, which is a loss of 14 points since December 1st. For the three preceding years the condition on March 1st was as follows: 1896, 92; 1897, 88; and 1898, 88. The three sections separately show the following average condition as of this date: Western, 70; central, 85, and eastern, 88.

The percent, of crop of 1898 still in the hands of farmers is estimated at 26. On March 1st, 1898, a similar estimate showed 9 per cent. of the old crop in farmers' hands.

The price of wheat March 1st averages 68c. On March 1st, 1898, the average price was 90c., and on March 1st, 1897, the price was 84c.

Corn.

Estimate on the percentage of corn crop of 1898 still in farmers' hands give the amount at 42 per cent. On March 1st, 1898 the per cent. of crop of preceding year in hands of farmers was 44.

Live Stock.

The trying effects of the unusually severe winter on live stock has to some extent been mitigated by the abundance of feed. Still, among young stock and stock unprovided with shelter, the loss has been heavy and the suffering intense. The heaviest loss has been with lambs and young pigs. Some correspondents estimate the loss of lambs at 33 1/2 per cent. of the crop. Recent experience should impress upon farmers the economy of providing amply for stock during the months of bad weather.

The condition of the various classes of live stock averages as follows: Horses, 94; cattle, 90; sheep, 89, and hogs, 90. The conditions March 1st, 1898, were 96, 95, 88 and 91 respectively.

Replies to question "Have you hog cholera?" Show a notable absence of this common disease. 133 correspondents answer in the negative and but 21 in the affirmative.

Effects of February Cold Wave.

The period from February 6th to 14th will be long remembered as a season of phenomenal low temperature. Remarkably not only for the low temperature recorded, but also for pertinacity with which this temperature was maintained. Covering a period of some ten days the mercury rose above the zero mark. Minima of 10 to 24 and even as low as 39 degrees below zero were reported during this time. In addition to the loss and suffering of live stock already noted the injury to the fruit crop is far reaching. Peaches will not only be a failure this year, but the damage to trees is such that the crops for several years to come will be affected. The same is true of cherries and plums, with the possible exception of sour cherries. Pears, though injured in some extent, still promise a fair yield. Apples have escaped injury save the injury to trees from heavy sleet in some sections.

Of the small fruits raspberries have suffered most and will probably be a failure. It is feared, too, that the injury extends to wild blackberries. Strawberries have escaped injury so far.

LUCAS MOORE,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

Telephone System of Sweden.

The Board of Managers of the Swedish State telegraph system has asked for an allowance of $780,000, to be expended during three years, for the extension of the telephone system in the kingdom. The Government makes about six per cent. net profit on the money thus far advanced for such purposes. Still, the State telegraph and telephone lines are managed just as much for the convenience of the people as for profit. The number of interurban telephone conversations during last year exceeded 2,700,000, and the frequency of the telephone calls necessitates the building of new lines.—Chicago Record.

SYMPHONY CLUB.

Some Testimonials From Press and People.

When I received the printing of the Schubert Symphony Club and Lady Quartette, for our benefit, I was most agreeably surprised at its variety and fine quality, which is in thorough keeping with the entertainment given last night. Especially pleasing was the most wonderful voice of Lovie Zandt Purcell, who, in almost baritone notes, retained the liquid sounds of a contralto. The fine quartette and the splendid recitations did much to add to our pleasure and amusement. Master Tommie is indeed a wonder, and the expression and feeling he brings from his violin places him in the front rank of child artists.

Yours Fraternally,

FRANK H. CLARK, K. of R. and S. Myrtle Lodge, No. 4, Knights of Pythias, Detroit, Mich.

The Schubert Symphony Club and Lady Quartette, assisted by Master Tommy Purcell, gave a concert at Whitney Music Hall for the benefit of Myrtle Lodge, K. of P. The voices blend well and moreover there is as much harmony in their appearance as in their song. But the best features were the numbers by Master Tommy Purcell. He is a little midget, with a Lord Fauntleroy appearance, and sings and recites comic songs and stories in a sweet voice from beneath a halo of flaxen curls. He was encored again and again. He also played Hoffman's Berceuse on the violin, and gave evidence of genius more than the average prodigy in the fact that he played with expression.—Detroit (Mich.) Tribune, Sept. 18, 1894.

A few years ago the coming of a good musical company to our city was a great event and always filled the house with a fine audience. Of late musical entertainments have not been so freely patronized here. Why? Simply because the usual programs were too elastic and cold for the average auditor. In the program to be given by the Schubert Symphony Club and Lady Quartette on March 27 we have a musical entertainment that is highly enjoyable from first to last. Our readers will do well to remember that it is not often that we are offered such a feast of musical good things as the Schubert's program contains.

CUBAN CENSUS.

Uncle Sam Will Count the Inhabitants of the Island.

Washington, March 13.—The Administration has decided to take a census of the island of Cuba as complete and careful as that taken in the United States. A census is found necessary to determine who are citizens and qualified electors before an election is held to establish a representative government.

This census will not be taken through or by any organization claiming to be representatives of the Cuban people, but by the authority of the United States Government, assisted by such civil officers as may be necessary to carry on the work.

It may be stated in this connection that the Government of the United States does not and has not recognized any assembly, organization, person or faction in Cuba as authorized to speak for the Cuban people. It has and will continue to deal with individuals and municipalities as it finds them. No government has been recognized and none will be until one has been constituted which is representative of the citizenship of the whole of the island.

The action of the Cuban Assembly has given the Government at Washington no concern whatever. It is known that the $3,000,000 now on its way to Cuba will be acceptable to the soldiers of the Cuban army. It matters not whether Gomez has been deposed or not, or whether he accepts his deposition. The Government will deal with the individuals of the Cuban army and the money will be paid to the soldiers by United States officers.

Rev. J. N. Edwards, of Richmond, has been called to the pastorate of the Mt. Taber Baptist church and he has accepted the call.

SOME SCOTCH YARNS.

Heard By a Wisconsin Man On a Recent Visit Home.

"Did I hear any Scotch stories while I was gone?" repeated John Johnson one morning according to the Milwaukee Wisconsin. "Why, yes—some bran new ones, some old ones—reset, several taken, as the Scotch people often do, from what is ancient history and just as funny in spite of that or because of it. And some I heard happened, so to speak, myself."

Mr. Johnson's summer in Aberdeenshire has been fruitful of some very funny incidents on the railway trains and off, and he tells them with that rare Scotch flavor of accent and intonation about which one never tires of talking. Some of his new stories bring with them the very pictures of old Scotch housewives from whom they came.

"There is nospecial part of the country," said Mr. Johnson, "in which the stories originate. They seem to come from all over Scotland. And they seem to be appreciated everywhere, too."

"When I crossed the border from England to Scotland," he said, "I listened for a good specimen of the Scotch dialect. At this season it is customary, even on the finest day, for flying showers to pass over the country, drenching everything, followed in a few minutes by bright sunshine, drying everything up again in a very short time. The train stopped for a few minutes at Lockerbie, which is James A. Bryden's native place, when I heard one old wife say to another: 'Janet, it's a gray bit shoorie.' 'Ouy,' says Janet, but it's nae what ye wud ca' a weetin' rain.'"

Illustrative of the loyalty of the Scottish peasant women for the life and ways of these fisherfolk, Mr. Johnson tells this:

"During the summer the north-west coast of Scotland is full of fisherfolk—men and women—from the highlands, who come to get work at the great herring harvests. Some of them are rather rough, and the residents do not all speak well of them. In riding on the train from Auchnagart to Aberdeen one fine morning my friend and I were speaking about fisherfolk. We were saying nothing derogatory to them, but an old woman on the car evidently thought so, for by and by she broke forth, saying: 'Indeed, ye forget that when our Saviour had to choose His apostles He passed by all the other occupations and chose them from the fisherfolk.'"

The Kissing Girl.

"Will you kiss me, Mr. Bryan?" she said, blushing deeply. Mr. Bryan excused himself. "Dad! Paper."

Will you kiss me, Mr. Bryan? Mr. Hobson, pray don't miss me! Oh, somebody, Oh, anybody celebrated, kiss me. I am not an unattractive girl, and kissing is my mission.

For I am of such a very sweet and lovely disposition: If by kissing famous men I can achieve a notoriety, I will, though in the act I kiss myself out of society. I stand on the railway platforms and await the latest hero. And before I'd miss a chance, I'd kiss Caligula or Nero: I hang upon a moving train, despoising every danger. Or wait my turn in public halls to kiss a perfect stranger: I kiss any one who's talked about—I hardly ever miss him—He may offer to shake hands, but I invariably kiss him.

VANITY OF GREATNESS.

One Young Man Who Found Out That He Never Would Be Flissed.

"You seem depressed this evening," said Hamblin as Flagg, who was generally on pretty good terms with himself, lit his eighth cigarette and then threw it away, after taking two whiffs.

"Yes I am," was the reply "There's no use trying to be anybody in this world."

"Oh come, brace up Hamblin urged. 'What's gone wrong? You ought to be ashamed to let yourself be cast down, after the streak of good luck you've had. Here you are on the sunny side of 30, and a firm doing a business of $1,000,000 a year has made you its chief buyer, with a salary that would keep three or four good-sized families in luxury. You've had a trip to Europe at the house's expense and you—"

"Hold on," Flagg interrupted, "you've struck the very thing that bothers me. You know Miss Doliver—that beautiful, stately girl I introduced you to one night in the Burkwells' box?"

"I called on her last evening. I used to call there every week or two, before I started across to the other side. Well, more than three months had elapsed since I had seen her last. Of course, I concluded that my trip was an apology enough for the fact that I had not called lately, so with out any ado I began talking about my experiences in Paris. What do you think she said?"

"Oh I can't guess."

"Why, have you been out of the city?"—Chicago Evening News.

Flaking Cuba American.

It is apparent that the Cubans generally are eager for the departure of the American troops and for an opportunity to form a government of their own with power to raise money by taxation and the use of the public credit. But they must not be too urgent or impetuous about this matter. They must keep in mind the exact terms of the pledge adopted by Congress. The resolution runs thus: The United States hereby disclaims any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction, or control over said island, except for the pacification thereof, and asserts its determination when that is accomplished to leave the control of the island to its people."

Before we withdraw there must be unquestioned pacification and a government ordained by the whole people of the island, not by one province, or two, but by the whole. The pressure brought to bear through the Cuban press to hurry our departure is already more strenuous than circumstances warrant or than is consistent with our National pledge.

The Cubans do not see one of the most serious troubles ahead, and that is the danger of quarreling among themselves on both provincial and racial lines. A large Spanish element remains in Cuba. It is used to authority and well acquainted with the weak as well as the strong characteristics of the Cubans. It will count for as much as possible in the future of the island, influencing the government and retarding its Americanization. Than the different provinces are not harmonious. Santiago is much displeased over the order to send a part of its revenue to Havana. Foreign property must be protected, and it will be a nice question to decide when our responsibility in that regard can end. Cuba must first be pacified. Then its people, all of them, can select their government. We are as much pledged to this consummation as we are to withdraw. That Cuba in time will be Americanized is certain, no matter what government it selects. American business energy will find there a permanent and legitimate field, and will be properly protected.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

This remedy is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough and influenza. It has become famous for its cures of these diseases over a large part of the civilized world. The most flattering testimonials have been received, giving accounts of its good results, of the age, sex and condition of the patient. It has cured, of severe colds that have yielded promptly to its soothing effects, and of the dangerous attacks of croup it has cured, often saving the life of the child. The extensive use of it for whooping cough has shown that it robs that disease of all dangerous consequences. It is especially prized by mothers for their children, as it will fail to effect a speedy cure, and because they have found that there is not the least danger in giving it, even to babies, as it contains nothing injurious. ## Kelly's Clock.

The question is being asked so often, "What is the matter with M. D. Kelly's time on top of his store house?" It has not been running lately. Mr. Kelly wishes to state that after sixteen years of constant use, he concluded to overhaul and put in new shafting, connecting the main clock in his show window with the machinery, or dials, on top of his store; also to make an important improvement in the main clock in his show window, which he is now at work on. It will be the addition of an 18-inch dial, that will plainly show the correct time on his show window. The big clock will be in splendid condition when Mr. Kelly gets through with it, which will be in a few days, and will then commence on another 16 years' run.

Apple Statistics.

I would say that 452,729 barrels of apples were shipped to Europe from the United States during the last calendar year. No later statistics can be obtained. This was a decided reduction from previous years. In 1896 nearly three times as many—1,137,714 barrels—were exported, and in 1897 881,279 barrels. The most of these apples went to Great Britain.

We ship an enormous quantity of dried apples abroad. The total in 1898 was 30,098,347 pounds, valued at $1,931,859.—Record.

DEMPSEY'S SPEECH.

In Accepting the Democratic Nomination for Railroad Commissioner.

Mr. Dempsey said in part: "Gentlemen of the convention, to you and to the noble constituency whom you represent here, with uncovered head, I return my warm, heartfelt thanks."

"Three years and ten months ago representatives of the Democracy of this Railroad Commission district assembled in the beautiful and hospitable city of Owensboro for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the office of Railroad Commissioner. That convention was remarkable and historical. After a protracted, weary and bitter struggle, amid storm and confusion, a platform was adopted demanding the free and unlimited coinage of both silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation. I had the distinguished honor to receive the nomination and to be placed upon that platform. The next year the Democrats of the Second Congressional district did me the honor to send me as a delegate to the National Democratic Convention, which assembled in Chicago."

"It was my happy privilege to have a vote and to cast that vote for the Chicago platform, the greatest declaration of the grandest principles ever promulgated by any political convention that ever assembled on earth. It was also my privilege and high pleasure to cast my vote for that standard bearer of the Democracy of the United States, for that Christian gentleman, pure in heart as when a babe in his mother's arms, true to his convictions as the magnet to the pole, morally brave as a martyred saint, physically courageous as a lion, imbued with a divine love for the great, suffering, toiling masses of the people, and by an all-wise God endowed with superhuman intelligence, William J. Bryan."

"Since his sun set in 1890 only to rise again with redoubled brilliancy and power in 1900, I have had the pleasure of introducing this most remarkable genius and grandest character of modern times to an audience of 20,000 souls assembled in the bosom of the little city where I was born and reared."

"Again, at the hands of the noble Democracy of the thirty-nine counties comprising the First Railroad Commission district, and this time by acclamation, I have been nominated for the office of Railroad Commissioner. To have received this nomination once, from so noble and lofty a people, is an honor of which any man living should be proud. I have received it twice and this fills the meed of my ambition. My friends, I know not how to thank you. My heart is filled to overflow with gratitude but I cannot command language that would fully express my feelings. The nomination you have given me assures my election. I will carry your banner to victory, and then will endeavor to discharge the duties I will owe to you and the whole people of the entire State with such fidelity and with such absolute fairness, impartiality and justice alike to the people and to the railroad companies, that my record will attest my gratitude. Once more, gentlemen, I thank you."

DEFENDS JACK CHINN.

Hallie Ermine Rives in the New York Journal.

Col. Jack Chinn, of Kentucky, was put under bonds the other day to keep the peace. He had threatened to kill State Senator Charles J. Bronston, who, while acting as attorney for one of Col. Chinn's creditors, had intimated that the Colonel had transferred all his property to his wife, with her connivance, to defraud his creditors. Chinn, who is never without a large bowie knife in his pocket, resented this attack upon his wife's honesty, and it was feared that he would kill Bronston.

I see that Col. Jack Chinn has a bowie knife on his again, and I am not surprised to find that it is in his own defense or that of a woman. All loyal Southerners will be in sympathy with Col. Chinn in his defense of his wife and home. For what chivalry is there to thrill in a man if this sacred duty is not performed? A Southern girl's idea of what constitutes a genuine Southern gentleman is, first of all, honor to woman. The man who wants to brand himself in every home as unworthy of his mother has only to be heard to speak deprecatingly of any woman.

It would be unjust to claim that he had no enemies, but his reputation is not that of a bravely bold. He acts upon honest convictions and unflinching courage. Although he ever carries a bowie knife in reach of his hand, it is not alone to be drawn in defense of himself, but a woman. He was never known to betray a friend.

As a type of the genuine Southern gentleman, whose heart is tender, whose chivalry is constant and whose courage is true, Col. Chinn stands all the measures of the test. Upon one occasion this man was present at a stag banquet of a number of prominent political and financial officials. The host was leading his listeners through the bewildering account of a monstrous scandal. The honor of one of the most distinguished belles in that section was at stake.

At first he mentioned no names, but at length, when he had dwelt in a particularly offensive way upon the episode, he came out with the girl's name as a striking climax to his story, congratulating himself upon how cleverly he had told it. What a catch must have come in his breath when the next second Colonel Chinn flashed out his knife and he said:

"That is a lie; she was not within a hundred miles of the place where you claim this happened. Take it back or it will be the last lie you ever tell on a woman!"

Before the resolute, sinister face the other faltered, and, coward that he was, shamefacedly confessed that he had a grudge against her for once rejecting his suit, and that was true that he had no proof as to the authenticity of what he had related. It had been told to him by someone—he had forgotten who. He, however, for it defeated him for one of the best offices in the State. It turned out that Colonel Chinn did not even know the woman, except by sight, but he had defended her upon general principles. The chance of having seen her at the Derby day in Louisville gave him the key to the falsehood that had her in another city at that particular time.

class of men who assail the good name of woman have learned to hold their tongues in the presence of Jack Chinn. It is in the highest degree unlikely that people who know the man as he is, would believe a statement that he was ever cowardly or unjust to be anything but a preposterous libel upon an honest and deserving man.

An Orator's Breakfast.

Two young ladies sat just in front of me in the House of Representatives' gallery Wednesday afternoon, says a writer in the Marshalltown, Iowa, Times Republican. One of them obviously was from out of town; the other quite as unmistakably lives in Washington, for she was pointing out the men on the floor for the edification of her companion.

"Oh, who's that man over there?" asked the companion. "I've seen him somewhere before. Who is it?"

"That?" said the other. "That's—oh, dear! I can't remember the name, but I know it just as well as I know my own. Why, he was up at Spirit Lake last summer, and we used to call him 'Rolled Oats,' because he always orated his breakfast order."

"Waiter," he would say, "bring me some r-rolled oats and some f-r-esh c-r-ream and some b-rown b-read."

"So we always called him R-rolled Oats." But what is his name? Oh, yes! Why, how stupid of me to forget! He's Mr. Dolliver."

The Book of the Season.

The new novel "David Harum," which is creating a decided sensation in the east, and is regarded as the book of the season, was written by a Syracuse banker named Westcott, who recently died of consumption, and is the only literary work he ever performed. The experience of the young man named John is very nearly his own, except that he studied medicine instead of law. Homeville, the scene of the story, is the town of Homer, Cortland county, N. Y., and the hero is a very accurate pencil sketch of David Harum, a banker in that village, who was known to everybody for miles around for his eccentric habits and shrewdness in financial transactions.

Sales of 25 hhd. of tobacco by Wheeler & Faxon, March 15, 1899. 20 hhd. medium to common leaf, $8.00 to 4.90.

5 hhd. lugs, $2.50 to 3.00.

(Reported by J. H. Eggleston, of Cummings & Eggleston Co., (Incorporated), buyer on order of dealer in and handler of leaf tobacco.)

Hopkinsville, Ky., March 15, 1899.

The offerings were very large again this week, being 465 hhd., the largest so far this year. As most of the buyers are without orders, prices ruled lower and rejections were heavy. The tobacco was mostly of a medium quality, but some fine tobaccos were offered and sold favorably. Prices on these were unchanged. Lugs ruled lower and were taken by speculators. Loose tobacco is moving steadily with good country buying. Quotations same, with prices nearer inside figures.

ENNIS AND ANDERSON

Will Go On The Road With Some Advertising Schemes.

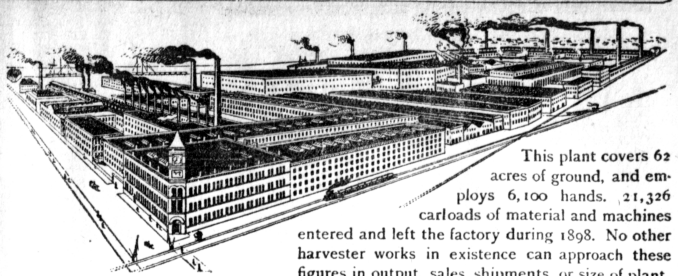

Mr. Thomas H. Ennis has resigned the management of Holland's Opera House and Mr. Holland will attend to the business himself the rest of the season. Mr. Ennis, in company with A. B. Both young men are well qualified for this line of business and will doubtless meet with good success in their undertaking.

Watterson's Son Promoted.

The list of 123 Second Lieutenants appointed under the Army Reorganization Bill has been made public. The Kentucky appointees are Capt. Fred D. This plant covers 62 acres of ground, and employs 6,100 hands, 21,326 carloads of material and machines entered and left the factory during 1898. No other harvester works in existence can approach these figures in output, sales, shipments, or size of plant.

Above is the birth-place of the Deering binder. At maturity it issues thence to conquer the world, for its field of operations are not confined to the United States, but stretches out to England, France, Scotland, Germany, Hungary, South Africa, Russia and Australia. The great Corliss Engine used in the Machinery Hall at the World's Fair is used in the twine department. This factory turns out 31 miles of twine and one complete machine per minute. Its size, capacity and number of employees surpass any other Harvester works in the world.

The Deering is now away in the lead owing to its progressive policy. It used ball bearings four years before the others followed suit, and in many other features it is equally as far ahead. THEY ARE EASY TO SELL because they are easy to run and easy to keep running. This is our twelfth year as Deering agents. You can always find repairs for it right here. Sears, Roebuck & Co. of Chicago, being an Immense Business in Michigan—Always Give their Customers Satisfaction.

One of the most conspicuous monuments to the value of extensive advertising is the immense establishment of Sears, Roebuck & Co. of Chicago, Ill., which in scarcely five years has grown to be one of the largest department stores in that city. They aim to get a lion's share of the trade, and that is the reason they advertise goods at figures that must appeal to those who may know the regular prices and are only too anxious for a chance to buy such goods for less money than they can be bought in Owosso. They advertise sewing machines and organs in this issue.

GLACIERS IN MONTANA.

Not Necessary to Go to Alaska to See Moving Ice Masses.

For some years I have been interested, says a writer in Science, in the geography of a small section of the Rocky mountains, which, until recently, was part of the Blackfoot reservation in northwestern Montana.

This section lies for the most part east of the continental divide and between the international boundary on the north and the Great Northern railroad on the south. The portion of it which I know best is included in the watershed of the St. Mary's river and its tributaries. In 1891 I took to the head of the St. Mary's river the first party that had ever visited so far as known, and in 1895 accompanied to the same point the government commission which afterward purchased from the Blackfoot Indians the rough mountain land which formed the western portion of the reservation of that tribe. Before that I had made a sketch map of the region, which is the basis of all the maps of it that have been made or published.

In 1897 I made a hasty trip to the head of the river and climbed Mount Jackson, the highest peak in that region. Last July (1898) I again went to the head of the river and climbed the Blackfoot mountain, another lofty peak, somewhat less accessible than Mount Jackson. On both trips I was accompanied by my friend, J. B. Monroe.

These last trips have enabled me definitely to locate two points about whose relations I have never until now been quite certain. One is the Pumpelly glacier, discovered by Prof. Raphael Pumpelly, who I believe in 1883, with a small party which included the late W. A. Sillies, crossed from the Flathead country to the plains by way of the Marias, or, as it is now called, the Cut Bank pass. This great mass of ice, which is seen by every traveler going through the Cut Bank pass, rises to the height of several hundred feet above the face of a lofty cliff, over which portions of the glacier are constantly falling with tremendous reports, which are heard for a long distance.

From the top of the Blackfoot mountain the whole country leading up to the Cut Bank pass can be seen, and immediately below it to the southeast lies the Pumpelly glacier, readily identified, not only by its position with relation to the valley, but also by the peaks and rocks in its neighborhood. It thus appears that the Pumpelly glacier, as I have long supposed was the case, is part of the southern flow of the great ice-cap which covers almost the whole of the Blackfoot mountain. The Blackfoot glacier, which stretches away in a northeasterly direction from the peak of the Blackfoot mountain, though perhaps varying in extent somewhat with the season, was estimated last July to be six or seven miles long, and in some places between three and four miles wide. From the peak of the Blackfoot mountain the ice field flows also in a northerly direction, meeting another which runs between Mount Kaimah and Mount Jackson, while from Mount Jackson a number of smaller glaciers flow down to timber line.

A little to the west of south of the Blackfoot mountains, and lying in a great bend of Mud creek—tributary to the Flathead—which entirely cuts it off from the main range, lies Mount James, one of the three highest peaks in this immediate section. Seen from the east, it is shaped like the square-faced, peaked end of a haystack, and at a distance appears difficult or impossible of ascent. Its southern and western faces may be more practicable than those on the north and east appear. From the top of the Blackfoot mountain the level shows Mount Jackson to be the highest of all these mountains, Mount James the next, while Blackfoot is the third. But the differences in height are slight.

A few miles northwest of Mount Jackson and lying on the west side of the range is a little basin named Avalanche basin by L. B. Sperry, of Oberlin, O., and on the mountain overlooking this, Mr. Sperry tells us, are extensive snowfields and a glacier. From the summit of this avalanche basin it appears that this avalanche basin lies nearly south of Mount Pagan of my map, and southwest of Mount Reynolds. I understand that Mr. Sperry, who was, of course, unaware that the mountain had been earlier named, has called Mount Reynolds Matterhorn, from the slender finger of rock which forms its peak. Mount Reynolds is in the continental divide, although most of the recent maps wrongly place it east of the divide.

If the locations of the Pumpelly glacier and of Avalanche basin, with regard to definite and well-known points in the continental divide, are thus established, the matter is of some interest to students of this section of the northern Rocky mountains, since hitherto, so far as I am aware, the relations of the east and known between the head of Belly river and Cut Bank pass.

Lying nearly to the south of Mount Jackson and between it and the Blackfoot mountain is a deep basin, which is the head of Harrison creek, flowing down toward the Flathead lake. This basin, which I have called Pinchot's basin, is occupied by a large glacier, which is fed by many smaller ones flowing down the steep sides of Mounts Jackson, Kaimah and Blackfoot. What the extent of this glacier may be I cannot know, but lying in this deep basin and almost completely surrounded by high mountains, the area of the moving ice must be considerable.

A MUSICAL PRODIGY.

Small Boy of Six Who Does Wonders on the Piano.

There is a remarkable boy pianist in Trenton, N. J. He is Charles O. Chapman, six years old, who can play all kinds of music on the piano by note, reading the music fluently, although not able to read anything else or write.

His precociousness was discovered when he was about three years old; by his ability to repeat tunes heard on the streets played on the hand organs. These he would thump out with one hand on the piano with a piece of bread and butter in the other. He was repeatedly driven away from the piano, because he invariably left a part of his lunch on the keys. It was impossible for him to keep away from either bread and butter or from the piano.

It was found that he had an ear for music, and a mind to unravel it. Everything he heard he could repeat and remember. He was taught to use both hands, and encouraged to stay at the instrument. He has continued to pick up the popular airs until he has become a miniature musical library.

On his fifth birthday it was decided that he should be given music lessons, and a local teacher was secured for him. In a very short time he was able to read notes, and after a few efforts, to play difficult pieces. He has been known to master a dozen pieces of music in a month, and now he can read music at sight.

His memory is another remarkable thing about his musical character. He can play a piece from the music and then be blindfolded and repeat it without an error. His finger performance is interesting, because he is fat and chubby and his fingers short. It is some effort for him to reach an octave. He manages it after his own fashion, and does it well. He is the son of John A. Chapman, a printer. It is not a musical family and there is no one connected with it who has any pronounced ability. The boy cannot read nor write, but is desirous to learn; but his interests in music overshadow his other desires.—Philadelphia Press.

CANNIBAL BIRDS.

Parrakeets Bite Off the Legs of Pet Canaries.

One fine day a batch of tiny parrakeets from a neighboring island arrived, and I congratulated myself on having at last acquired some amiable members of my bird community. Such gentle creatures were never seen, their pale green plumage and the little gray-lined beak which distinctly explained their name of "cannibals," they made themselves quite happy in one of the many domes or cupolas of the Arab cage. In a few days, however, a mysterious illness broke out among all the other birds. Scarcely any other bird seemed suddenly to grow going about on one leg. At last it dawned on me that many of the canaries had actually only one leg. An hour's careful watching showed me a parrakeet siding up to a canary, and, after feigning to be deeply absorbed in its own toilet, preening each leg wing feather most carefully, the little gray-headed bird suddenly seized the canary's leg with its beak and, with a swift nip, tore it off. The canary, and absolutely bite it off then and there. Of course I immediately turned the cupachins out of the cage with much obloquy, but too late to save several of my poor little pets from a one-legged existence.—Cornhill Magazine.

Concert.

Concert is more a matter of brains than of physical strength. There are few men who think that they can go into a ring and wing Fitzsimmons, but men with brains as weak as their strength would be in a match with a pugilist, still they are fully capable of starting a bank, and doing up an opposition that has been running for years, and that is managed by men of experience, judgment and long training. Men will not bank on their strength, but every man thinks that his brain is as good as the best.—Aitchison Globe.

COCONUT CULTURE.

A Farm Five Miles Long and Half a Mile Deep.

A coconut grove five miles long and half a mile deep might be called a fairly good-sized experiment in horticulture. That is the story of Mr. C. T. Hunter's plantation in British Honduras. Mr. Hunter himself is spending a few days at the St. Charles, and in conversation with a Times-Democrat reporter gave some interesting details of coconut culture.

The trees are grown direct from the nut, he said, "so the first step in establishing a grove is planting. Then follows a wait of seven years, something that absolutely bars a poor man from the business. A grove properly planted should contain about 80 trees. The cost line is the best place for the coconuts for the reason that it thrives in a loose, sandy soil, and when I started 18 years ago I acquired a strip directly facing the beach. I have now about five miles under cultivation, and the grove stretches back for upward of half a mile. Viewed from the sea, the long line of waving fronds presents a beautiful and singular picture. It is the largest single grove in the world.

"During its seven years of growth before arriving at maturity," continued Mr. Hunter, "the tree requires but little care. The main thing is to keep the surrounding ground free from underbrush. We pay no attention to weeds, for they have been found to be really a benefit to the grove, but the underbrush must be cleared several times a year. When the trees begin to bear they are very prolific almost from the outset. A fine specimen will yield as many as 250 nuts in the year, and the average will be close to 200. As far as I have been able to learn, this is far in advance of the yield anywhere else. In other sections of Central America 60 is considered a very fair average, but the soil of British Honduras seems to be particularly adapted to the culture and to produce a larger and more vigorous tree than is to be found elsewhere.

"There is no particular season for bearing, but a grove, or 'cocalo,' as they are called, will yield a harvest all the year around after it once reaches maturity. For a long time the tree will continue to bear as a disputed question, and the period is so extended that no accurate data exists. I know of well-authenticated cases where nuts have been picked from certain trees for 70 years, and they seem as vigorous and prolific as ever. While the crop is really an evergreen, it is usually largest in the first season—that is to say, between October and January, and it is then that the principal shipments are made. With a good-sized coconal, however, there is always a cargo at hand.

"The picking is done by natives, who live in huts at intervals along the grove. The nuts are then taken to the warehouse, where they are hulled, sorted and stored. We get from eight to ten dollars a thousand, and at the present price of labor there is scarcely any profit. The labor question, in fact, is the great drawback to coconut culture in the colony. The population is only 30,000 all told, and it is next to impossible to secure a sufficient number of hands to care for a coconal of large dimensions. In that genial climate it is so easy for a lazy man to live that money has practically no value to him. Nature furnishes the necessities of life, and he can simply lie down in his shack and doze three days away without a shadow of care. Not one-one-hundredth part of the land is under cultivation, and with energetic labor and modern methods the initial cost could be enormously reduced, so as to make the business very profitable. Central America is undoubtedly the garden spot of the earth, and its development is only a question of good government. As soon as that is secured it is bound to throng with emigrants."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

NEVER HEARD OF AGAIN.

Mysterious Disappearance of Deep-Water Sailing Ships.

The frequency with which deep-water sailing ships have left for the far east, particularly from Philadelphia, and have never been heard of again, has become alarming to such an extent that the British board of trade, having control over such things so far as British ships are concerned, is being importuned to institute hereafter a most searching investigation into these mysterious disappearances, with a view to determining if they are not possibly due to their being insufficiently ballasted when carrying out cargoes of coal.

During the last few years the sacrifice of life, due alone to ships leaving this port for the far east and never afterward being heard from, has been abnormal. Two such cases have recently occurred. On May 3, 1897, the British bark Craighead left here for Hogo, Japan, laden with coal and having a crew of 32 men. She has not been heard from since. Last March the British bark David Morgan left here for Nagasaki, and has mysteriously disappeared with her entire crew of 19 men.—Philadelphia

NO ELECTION.

Delaware Legislature Fails to Select a Successor to George Gray.

Dover, Del., March 13.—The General Assembly adjourned at 3:30 p. m., without electing a United States Senator. The election of a senator now goes over until 1901 unless a special session of the Legislature is called for the purpose of an election.

Intense excitement attended the meeting of the Delaware Legislature on this the last day of the session, and the last opportunity to elect a United States Senator to succeed Hon. George Gray. During the morning there was much interest over a combination between Democrats and Regular Republicans to elect Levi C. Bird, of Wilmington, Regular Republican. The Democrats were afraid, however, that any attempt on their part to interfere in the Republican factional fight might induce some Democrats to vote for J. Edward Addicks and thus secure his election.

Admiral Sampson has written for the April Century an illustrated article fully describing the work of "The Atlantic Fleet in the Spanish War," and drawing its lessons. The more important features of this paper are a plan setting forth the character of the blockade of Santiago Harbor; maps showing the relative positions from day to day of Cervera, Schley, and Sampson; and a series of bird's-eye plans of the engagement of July 3, showing the positions of the vessels at different stages of the fight. In a foot-note the Admiral tells this good story:

"As we passed the Teresa and Oquendo, a Spanish sailor was seen struggling in the water on the seaward side of the New York. In response to his calls for help, one of the crew seized the chaplain's reading-desk, which was stowed on the main deck in the passage between the two cabins, and which had a cross showing on it. As he did so, he cried out grimly, 'Cling to the cross and you'll be saved!' The Spaniard followed instructions, and was saved."

Ninth Street. Flack Building

Such is man.

Man that is married to woman is for many days and full of trouble. In the morning he draweth his salary, and in the evening behold it is gone. It is a tale that is told. It vaniseth and no one knows whither it goeth.

He riseth up, clothed in the chilly garments of the night, and seeketh the somnambulant paragon where with to soothe his infant posterity. He cometh home as the horse or the ox, and draweth the chariot of his offspring. He spendeth his shekels in purchase of fine linen to cover the bosom of his family, yet himself is seen at the gate of the city with one suspender.

Yea, he is altogether wretched.—Rob't J. Burdette.

London's Drink.

Londoners consume 275,000,000 gallons of water a year, according to the Home Magazine; they do not drink all of it, and what they do drink is not always taken clear, as they use 26,000,000 pounds of tea as well. They do put down 153,000,000 gallons of beer, however, as well as 4,400,000 gallons of spirits, besides 50,000,000 gallons of mineral waters.

Paine's Celery Compound Counteracts the Nervous Strain of the School Room.

"I know of nothing so good as Paine's celery compound," says Miss May Sherwin, for the past 17 years principal of the largest public school in Bloomington, Ill., "to counteract the nervous strain incident to a constant life in the school room."

"I have myself used Paine's celery compound," she continues, "with most satisfactory results. It is a splendid nerve tonic."

The discoverer of Paine's celery compound was himself one of the greatest teachers that ever lived.

Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., held a famous professorship in Dartmouth college, and was a lecturer in other great universities all the while he was engaged in that momentous study which led to the chief accomplishment of the medical research of this century—the development of Paine's celery compound.

The general complaint now among intelligent women is that they are hurried and driven and fretted almost out of their senses by their demands upon their time and strength.

No wonder, then, the average woman has lost the capacity for sound sleep, good digestion and the freedom from aches and pains that follow healthy organic functions.

Many years of suffering might be avoided, weary months of lost time put to good service, and thousands of lives saved if persons who do not sleep well and those with overworked brains and nerves would take Paine's celery compound.

In the cure of nervous diseases this remedy has again and again demonstrated its power to combat these tenacious ailments.

It is to general poor health that we are to look for the cause of headaches, rheumatism and neuralgia, and to overcome these troubles it is the general health that must be raised. Sick headaches that recur so periodically with most women and are so grievous an affliction should be treated as due to lower nervous tone, and a thorough invigoration of the body should be undertaken with Paine's celery compound.

The best test of the wonderful value of Paine's celery compound is to use it. Any woman will soon be convinced that it is the one remedy that can make and keep her well and healthful and strong.
